HOME DESTROYED—East Hancock County Fire Protection District Administrative Chief Bill Field Jr. points out a boat that was slightly damaged Saturday by a fire that destroyed the home of Roy Neely in Garden Isles. Field said the house had been on fire for some time before being reported with the house next door threatened when the first fire truck arrived on the scene. There was slight damage to the second house caused by the excessive heat, but Field credited the firefighters with preventing it from catching fire. Hancock County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh said Wednesday the cause of the fire had not been determined but arson is not suspected. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Grant application already approved

Welfare employees plead for new building

BY DENA BISNETTE

A spokesperson for the employees of the Hancock County Welfare Department has asked the board of supervisors for assistance in obtaining grant funds for a new building.

The welfare department is presently housed in a building with a leaky roof, inadequate climate control and other problems cited in a letter presented to the board Monday by department employee Celeste Proulx and Welfare Director Wallace Bradley.

The letter cited frequent break-ins, including a possible entry during the past weekend, as one of the recurring problems.

"The condition of the building has been such in the past as to make it almost impossible for employees to concentrate and do the work that is necessary to handle over 2,000 cases," the letter stated.

"The recent reduction in staff has made the job even harder but to have to work under conditions such as exist in the present building causes distress to the workers which is not conducive to productivity."

The letter also stated that an energy use audit authorized for several county buildings but not yet conducted at the welfare department should show that it is not possible to renovate the structure efficiently.

At its Dec. 15 meeting, the board had authorized Gulf Regional Planning Commission to assist Welfare Department Director Wallace Bradley in applying for a community development block grant.

According to commission representative Kathy Moon, the grant will probably require 25 to 30 percent matching funds, although such grants usually require a 50-50 match.

There is a possibility that a county-owned site and clearing work on that site could be accepted as an in-kind match, Proulx added.

The board also, on a split vote, had approved a proposal to look into the possibility of a grant for renovating the existing Hancock General Hospital Building to house the welfare department.

Proulx said the department's employees do not support the second proposal.

"The county needs to get some revenue from the old hospital and use it to help build a new facility," she said.

Because the authorization for the grant applications had already been approved, the only action the supervisors took on the matter Monday was adding the letter to their minutes.

The letter includes 18 welfare department employees' signatures.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner brought up the matter of the hospital later in the meeting.

Ladner had earlier expressed his support for a request for use of the building from the Bay St. Louis-

Waveland School District.

School district officials had stated that they would consider leasing or possibly buying the building.

Ladner said he had found a law in section 19-7-3 of the Mississippi Code that would allow transfer of the building to another governmental entity without standard bidding procedures.

He did not ask the board for action at the time and said he had researched the law "mainly to let you all know it can be done."

Other board members, however, stated that they still favor selling the building, and Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro said the structure should be sold or put to some kind of use for the county itself.

Furniture for jail to be purchased at state bid price

BY DENA BISNETTE

Furniture is being ordered for the new Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has authorized Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise, in cooperation with Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, to order most of the furniture that will be needed for the administrative section of the new jail.

The jail is scheduled to open in February after interior work on electronic security systems and painting have been completed and parking and access areas have been paved.

Necaise said the furniture is being ordered at state bid prices in an effort to save the county money.

In addition, ordering at state bid prices waives the usual 30-day advertising period, which combined with the delivery time for the furniture could delay the Sheriff's Department's move into the new facility, Peterson said.

The original furniture estimate supplied by Fred Wagner, architect for the new jail, was $45,000, with 10 percent of the total cost of furniture specified to go to Wagner as a fee.

The board turned down Wagner's proposal in late November.

According to Peterson, the remaining furniture will be obtained from Hancock General Hospital when that building is vacated and replaced by Hancock Medical Center.

The board had originally expected to be able to purchase the furniture out of funds from the $2.5 million bond issue being used to build the jail, but Necaise said the bond issue did not include enough money for furniture.

Peterson said the bond issue did include "equipment," which includes bunks and other items inside cells.

Other business at Monday's board meeting included:

—Annual reappointment of all county employees;

—Authorizing application for a Soil Conservation Service grant for erosion control in McLeod Water Park;

—Accepting a Hancock County Soil and Water Conservation District donation of Magnolia trees for placement along a soon-to-be constructed boulevard at Hancock Medical Center;

—Approving free use of McLeod Park for all past and present park commissioners;

—Approving purchase of maintenance insurance on sheriff's department vehicles;

—Authorizing the sheriff's department to purchase a radio for the county ranger;

—Hearing complaints about street problems from two Garden Isles residents;

—Hearing from Jail Committee Vice-Chairman Jan Brameyer, who offered his assistance in refurbishing any of the Hancock General Hospital furniture to be used in the new jail;

—Accepting a letter from Joseph Manieri protesting buffer zone regulations and agreed to consider his request for endorsement of his protest;

—Asking County Engineer Larry Seal, South Mississippi Planning and Development District Representative Jeff Taylor and Johnson to submit a report on the possibility of an emergency repair program for parts of Beach Road;

—Approving contracts for posting roads and bridges in the county;

—Authorizing Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge to contact the owner of a sunken boat at Bayou Cadet;

—Authorizing use of a county backhoe at Waveland's city cemetery; and —Authorizing use of a county backhoe to assist the city of Bay St. Louis with drainage work on Thomas Street.

The board meets again on Jan. 15 at 9 a.m. in the Hancock County Courthouse.

Sheriff searches for burglary suspect

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department is searching for a white male who was discovered during two separate burglaries and is suspected on other burglary.

The suspect is reportedly in his late 20's, approximately 5'8" tall and weighs 160 pounds, according to Investigator Alvin Ladner.

He was first discovered in the Norma Fusch home on Lakeshore Road Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Fusch's son, Ladner said.

"The suspect was in the process of stealing property when the owner's son confronted him," he added.

Ladner said the suspect escaped in a 1976-80 dark blue and gray car possibly with Harrison County license plates while the owner's son was calling the sheriff's department.

Three shotguns are missing from the Fusch home.

A young man fitting the same description was next reported to have broken into a trailer just a few miles away.

Mrs. Wayne Ladner arrived home at her Lakeshore Road trailer to find the door open and an unknown car in the driveway.

She got assistance from nearby relative Lee Klein to try and detain the suspect, Ladner said.

"However the suspect fled again and Klein fired a shot at the tire," Ladner said.

Two video cassette recorders are missing from this trailer and another one plus two wedding rings were taken from the Judy Hill residence also in the neighborhood, he stated.

Anyone with information should contact Investigator Alvin Ladner at the sheriff's office, 467-5101.

Mr. Carl T. Smith

Tomorrow Mr. Carl T. Smith will be laid to rest next to his beloved wife of 66 years.

Among the unique things about Mr. Carl, as many of us knew him, was the fact that he was driving his auto up until six months ago, and was still employed at an age of 91.

There will not be many of us reaching a century in age much less still driving when we are near 100 years old.

We have had the good fortune of knowing Mr. Carl since our childhood days, and he was an inspiration to us in so many ways.

A resident of Bay St. Louis since 1930, he and his wife were both well known throughout the area.

Many can remember Mr. Smith traveling around the area on a tricycle in his later years.

A man loyal to his family, church and country, Mr. Smith was a friend to many.

A World War I veteran, he and his wife lost a son, Ensign Richard Mark Smith, in action during World War II.

Our community had the good opportunity of having Mr. Carl for so many years, and his memory will remain for many years to come.

To his children, grandchildren, relatives and friends, we have lost a wonderful citizen as Mr. Carl T. Smith was a gentleman in every respect.

Quotables by Cuevas

A lot of new things come into effect for the general public in 1987, and one is the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

As one local merchant told me this week, there probably will also be a Tax Reform Act in 1987 to correct all the errors in 1986's.

Those who prepare Income Taxes have been receiving numerous calls from patrons seeking information on how to fill out the new W-4 Forms for employees.

The understanding we had, just as others, was the Tax Reform Act was to make tax reporting easier. This you cannot prove by me or others I have spoken to in recent days.

A lot of talk is also going on about four-year-olds needing to have a Social Security number.

As we have learned many years ago, two things we can look forward to in life: No. 1, we have to pay taxes; and No. 2, everyone has to die.

POLITICIANS AND STATESMEN

Members of the Mississippi Legislature will do well to remember the words of a former governor as they begin the 1987 legislative session.

The former governor frequently quoted his popular definition of politicians and statesmen.

"A politician," he would say, "is one who looks to the next election. A statesman is one who looks to the next generation."

Today, perhaps as never before, Mississippi needs statesmen rather than politicians.

Legislators face critical choices over the next 90 days. There are questions related to state finance, taxation, public education, higher education, highways, tort reform, the constitution, and other issues which demand urgent attention.

Hopefully, legislators will make decisions based on the needs of the next generation and not on the expediencies of the next election. Statesmanship should be standard for legislative performance in 1987, which happens to be an election year.

Mississippi economy to be addressed at conference

Tourism and its role in the economic future of Mississippi communities and the nation will be addressed at the annual Governor's Conference on Tourism, Jan. 25-27, in Jackson.

Sponsored by the Division of Tourism, Mississippi Department of Economic Development, "Super Conference '87" will be held at the Holiday Inn Downtown.

Headlining the conference will be a panel discussion on "Tourism Trends, Challenges and Opportunities." Speakers include Marshall Murdaugh, president of the Memphis Convention and Visitors Bureau; Ed Stone, vice president for Opryland USA in Nashville; and Jo Luck Wilson, executive director of the Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism.

Among other subjects to be covered in sessions at the three-day conference are selling Mississippi to Mississippians, developing the tourism product, promotion, benefits of on-location film making, and convention sales.

Governor Bill Allain and DED Director Jerry McDonald will present the prestigious Tourism Achievement Award, travel media awards, and the Corporate Friend to Tourism Award during ceremonies Monday evening, Jan. 26. Special entertainment for the evening will be Mississippi recording artist Dorothy Moore.

Registration deadline is Jan. 9. The fee of $120 covers all conference functions. Additional banquet tickets are available at $40 per person through advance reservations.

Civic Association finances highway safety measure

Dear Editor:

This letter is from Garden Isle Community Association.

After much time and many phone calls to different officials of Hancock County, supervisors meetings and contact with highway commissions, we the members of GICA decided we would have our own street light installed at the bridge on Highway 603 and Longfellow Road.

We of Garden Isle are not the only one's who use this turn but found it to be quite dangerous and hazardous.

Numerous cars and an 18 wheeler have gone into the very deep ditch there, but now at least you can see where you are going.

We are also waiting on the highway commission to put reflectors leading to the turn and bridge.

They are also supposed to put a meter there to see just how much traffic uses this cutoff and if it calls for widening the apron leading to the bridge from Hwy 603.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON— Fifteen years after the 1,000-mile four-lane "corridor" highway construction program was launched, and then abandoned, a citizens' group is asking the Legislature to fund and complete the system as vital to state economic development.

Back in 1972, a group called HOPE (Highways Our Pressing Emergency) led by the late George McLean, the progressive Tupelo newspaper publisher, waged an aggressive campaign for a four-lane highway system to reach major areas not served by interstate highways.

The group had its beginning in Northeast Mississippi which was then isolated from Jackson, the state capital and chief metropolitan area, because there was no four-lane link between the two areas. Now, 15 years later, there is still no four-lane link.

HOPE had sparked the enactment of the 1972 Corridor Highway Plan, for which the Legislature voted a one-cent increase in the gasoline tax, not the three cents urged by the citizens' group.

The program had been projected to cost $600 million at its inception. But by the time it got well underway in 1976, due to inflation, the projected cost had escalated to nearly $2 billion.

Legislators began to weaken on the corridor program, dealing it a body blow in 1978 and abandoning it in the 1981 Highway Reorganization Act. It was then only one-third complete.

One of the business leaders who had been a strong backer of McLean and HOPE back in the 70s was Owen Cooper, the progressive Yazoo City industrialist businessman-humanitarian. In 1986 he still believed the four-lane corridor system was essential to the state's economy.

Cooper, along with some other top business leaders, formed AHEAD, (Advocating Highways for Economic Advancement and Development) to find ways to revive the program and fund the more than 1,000 miles yet to be built.

AHEAD came up with a plan geared to a five cents per gallon increase in the state gasoline tax, and based on a three-step priority construction plan with a mandated 10-year deadline.

Then Cooper died in early November before he could see AHEAD's program put before the Legislature.

There is one major difference between the attitude at the state level which existed when HOPE sprang forward in 1972, and the one that exists now. HOPE had not only a receptive, but enthusiastic governor in Bill Waller to push its plan together with the funding back in the early 70s.

AHEAD, on the other hand, has been greeted coolly, if not with hostility, by Gov. Bill Allain, who balks at any kind of a gas tax increase, much less five cents a gallon. Additionally, Allain is still adamant about reorganizing the existing elective State Highway Commission before anything is done about highways.

The AHEAD plan is the basis for a $1.5 billion, 1,066 mile, four-lane highway program that the Transportation Committee of the Mississippi House led by Reps. John Pennabaker of New Albany and Billy McCoy of Hattiesburg will propose in the 1987 legislative session.

It, like the AHEAD proposal, would be keyed to a five-cent per gallon gasoline tax hike and would follow the original Corridor routes laid out in the 1972 program.

Mississippi has had no increase in its excise tax on gasoline since the one-cent hike approved back in 1972 put the tax at nine cents per gallon effective 1973. Meantime, every state around Mississippi, and almost every state in the country, has significantly increased its gasoline tax.

Perhaps many Mississippians have forgotten it, but the U.S. government in 1982 added another five cents per gallon to the federal tax on gasoline to provide more funds for the interstate system.

Aside from Allain's three-year feud with the State Highway Commission, there is considerable reluctance around the Legislature to entrust any new big highway program to the highly political commission.

That's why, according to Pennabaker, his plan very tightly designates where and when the money will be spent on the 1,066-mile, four-lane system, leaving no leeway for the Highway Commission to use it as a political football.

"To me, reorganization of the Highway Commission is an entirely separate issue," said Pennabaker. "We would mandate the priorities and the spending of the funds in the same way whether it was an elective or an appointive commission."

Pennabaker said he hopes Governor Allain "will see that and will not try to make the commission an issue."

But the Northeast Mississippi lawmaker said he understood Allain will propose his own highway program, based on a $300 million bonding capacity the highway department has using present revenues.

Pennabaker said that the cost of completing the first, or highest priority phase of the three-phase four-lane system, "alone would be around $500 million."

The momentum that has been built behind the four-lane highway program by AHEAD and legislative proponents give it at least a 50-50 chance of passing. But if it is blocked by an Allain veto, many believe it will become a prime issue in this year's governor's race.

If ever the four-lane highway program becomes a reality, wouldn't it be fitting that it be dedicated as a memorial to George McLean and Owen Cooper, two visionaries from the private sector who lighted the way for government to act?

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION IMPORTANT IN LEGISLATURE

By the time you read this column, the 1987 Legislative session will be well underway. As in recent past years, money matters will once again be a dominant part of the deliberations. I have presented a balanced budget to the Legislature that includes no new taxes, and I continue to believe that the time is not right for additional taxes on our people.

But the purpose of my column today is not to discuss the money matters involving our state. I will write many additional columns during the session on that topic.

Today, I want to discuss another matter of great importance to our state. When I make my State of the State address to the Legislature early in the session, a major recommendation included will be a request for the lawmakers to call a convention to rewrite the Mississippi Constitution of 1901.

As you are aware, I appointed more than 300 Mississippians to serve on a Constitutional Commission, and they have been working diligently for more than one year without pay. I commend their efforts on behalf of the people of Mississippi. Led by former Governor J. P. Coleman, the commission has developed a list of recommendations for consideration in a constitutional convention.

Mississippi is one of the few remaining states that has not updated its constitution to meet the demands of today's economic growth and development. A convention, with delegates elected by you, the people, would allow us the opportunity to modernize our document to keep pace with our neighboring states.

I have said throughout the discussions about a new constitution that we have some good sections that do not need to be rewritten. But the time has come to continue the good work begun by the year-long commission study.

Please urge your local legislator to vote in favor of allowing you to select delegates to a constitutional convention. With this action, Mississippi can continue to move forward.

Concerned about the problems of rural fire protection, Senator John White of Baldwin has filed legislation to increase the amount of money given to counties for their volunteer fire departments.

White's bill would increase from 1.6 million to 4 million annually the amount of insurance premium taxes paid to the "County Volunteer Fire Department Fund." The bill further increases the amount allowed by a county board of supervisors and a municipal board to contribute to a volunteer fire department and $100 to $250 per fireman.

"I am convinced that the only way we are going to be able to get insurance companies to provide fire insurance to rural areas and to decrease the premiums charged for rural insurance is to upgrade their local fire departments. Each time a fire department meets the requirements to change its classification, the insurance premiums for those served by the department decrease," said White, who represents Itawamba, Prentiss and Tishomingo Counties.

White noted that his bill would put counties on an equal basis with cities which presently received 4 million in their fund for fire departments.

"The state's General Fund, which receives the remainder of the insurance premium taxes, would not be hurt by my bill because these taxes are expected to increase from $6 million to $8 million next year," White added.

For home mortgages

Lower interest rates make refinancing attractive

By Karen L. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Mississippians have saved an estimated $10 million by using a computer program designed to help homeowners take advantage of lower interest rates and refinance their homes.

The program, from the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, has been available since March, according to Dr. Frances C. Graham, a housing specialist with the MCES.

The program, from the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, has been available since March, according to Dr. Frances C. Graham, a housing specialist with the MCES.

"We estimate that if each of the 82 counties did as well as five programs and each of those savings was as little as $25,000, the total savings for Mississippians would be more than $10 million," she said. "And these are conservative figures."

After decreasing suddenly at the beginning of 1985, interest rates continue to remain steady and home refinancing is still a popular option. Interest rates for refinancing homes are currently 9 and 10 percent.

"Major economists are predicting interest rates will hold steady for the next eight or nine months, but they won't go lower," Graham said. "Now is the time to refinance."

The program takes 15 minutes to run if the homeowner has all the information necessary. The program tells the home owner if he will save any money by refinancing. The cost of refinancing is included in the decision.

A Pontotoc schoolteacher, who did not want her name used, said refinancing saved her family $50 per month for a total of $11,000 in 15 years. The interest rate decreased from 13.5 percent to 9.6 percent and 2.5 years were knocked off the loan.

To use the program the homeowner must come to the county Extension office with the following information: the dollar balance of the mortgage, the remaining time in months, the current interest rate, the monthly payment excluding taxes and insurance, the new interest rate and the new loan discount points.

The homeowner's personal papers should provide all of this information, except for the current interest rate and loan discount points. If the homeowner can't find his amortization schedule, Graham said MCES has another computer program that will figure it.

The homeowner should contact the prospective lending agency for a breakdown of closing costs. If this isn't possible the computer program will plug in a 4 percent figure.

Refinancing may not be for everyone. A guideline is that the difference between the interest rate on the mortgage and the current rate of interest should be at least 2 percent.

"Each case has to be taken on an individual basis," Graham said. "Some homeowners can benefit from refinancing even if the new interest rate is only 1 percent lower than their current mortgage."

Another guideline is that the homeowner should live in the home two years after refinancing to recoup the cost of refinancing. For example, if the cost of refinancing is $1,200 and the monthly payment is reduced by $50, then it would take exactly two years to recoup the cost.

But there may be other considerations, Graham said. Getting the monthly payment down would be an advantage. Also having a lower interest rate would be attractive to another buyer.

"This would apply to homeowners who plan on moving up to a bigger house or who plan on moving to another city before the breakeven point," she said.

Although determining whether refinancing will work for a particular homeowner is quick, the actual process of refinancing may take as long as six weeks. Many homeowners are refinancing and it takes time for the various forms of paperwork—credit reports, property appraisals—to be completed.

Bill Scott of DeSoto County found the computer program to be very helpful. His monthly payment was reduced by $50 and his interest rate went down from 12.5 percent to 10 percent.

"I also learned the breakeven point is longer than some mortgage companies led me to believe," he said.

Justice okays voting changes

JACKSON—Secretary of State Dick Molpus announced that legislation creating the Mississippi Election Code of 1986 has received approval from the U. S. Department of Justice under the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Molpus was notified by telephone that a letter was issued from the Justice Department to Attorney General Ed Pittman indicating that the revised election laws have been pre-cleared. The new election code will become effective immediately.

"The approval by the Justice Department of this comprehensive set of election laws is recognition that Mississippi has made genuine progress in providing access to the electoral process for all our citizens," Molpus stated.

"Senators Bill Harpole and Hob Bryan and Representatives Tim Ford and Isiah Fredericks deserve special mention for their efforts."

The bill creating the new election code was enacted during the 1986 legislative session and was submitted to the U. S. Department of Justice in early July. After an initial review, the Voting Section of the Civil Rights Division requested additional information in order to make a final determination. The Justice Department had until Friday, Jan. 2, to approve or reject the set of laws.

"This approval clears the way for the implementation of a dramatically improved election code," said Molpus.

"We have demonstrated with this legislation that Mississippi can put its own affairs in order. These constructive results occur when everyone is involved and when people are dealt with honestly and fairly."

The impetus for the legislation began in 1984 when Molpus appointed an Election Law Task Force, composed of legislators, circuit clerks, election commissioners, and other persons in elections administration. The Task Force studied the existing election laws, held public hearings, and ultimately proposed legislation which became the basis of the new election code.

"It's indeed regrettable that Herman DeCell, the visionary chairman of the Task Force, did not live to see the fruition of his efforts," Molpus said in paying tribute to the former Yazoo County legislator who died in November.

"Herman's spirit of good will, fair play, and concern for a more open process is evident in this product."

Major new provisions which have been approved include expanded polling hours, mandatory training of elections officials, registration and reporting of financial contributions and expenditures by political action committees, elimination of the anti-single shot voting provision, mandatory use of automated voting devices by January 1, 1989, simplification of absentee voting procedures, the possibility of a Southern regional Presidential primary in 1987, the prohibition of lotteries or other contests to encourage persons to vote or not to vote, and a common qualification date for both party and independent candidates.

The provision for a common qualification date had been previously rejected twice by the Justice Department. Molpus noted that "the common qualification date was given hard scrutiny, but the Justice Department was persuaded by the facts that to allow persons to qualify late as spoilers was unfair and that common qualification would not harm black party candidates, would benefit both political parties, and would not harm legitimate independent candidates."

"With the reorganization of the election code into a coherent whole, we have taken a big step."

"There are, however, still many improvements to be made, and we will continue to work toward a fairer, more open, and more efficient electoral process," Molpus concluded.

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lakens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Food prices increasing

According to the Consumer Price Index, food prices are where the increases will be for this year. Inflation remains low. Energy prices have even dropped. However, poultry and meat prices have increased and remained strong through the end of 1986.

Some considerations for taxes - 1986

1. Since consumer interest deduction will be only 60 percent in 1987, paying off higher interest credit cards and loans or paying them down would be a good consideration.

2. Take a look at profits from assets such as stocks, bonds and real estate owned more than six months. The tax rates on long-term profits go up under the next tax law. You now get to exclude 60 percent of long-term gains. The new law abolishes the capital gains exclusion. Profits on sales made after Dec. 31 will be fully taxable. Congress capped the capital gains rate at 28 percent but that is higher than present.

3. Starting in 1987, net long-term losses are fully deductible against other income, up to the limit.

4. The tax reform restricts the medical deduction. Beginning in 1987, medical cost will be deductible only to the extent they exceed 7.5 percent of their adjusted gross income. You might want to consider getting elective dental or medical work before the end of the year. This would include eyeglasses, contact lenses, etc.

5. Charitable contributions made in 1986 are 100 percent deductible whether or not you itemize. Starting next year non-itemizers get no tax break for charitable giving.

6. Starting next year, miscellaneous expenses will be deductible only to the extent the total exceeds two percent of your adjusted gross income.

7. Tax reform does not affect your 1986 contribution to IRA. You have until next April 15 to make your contribution and earn a deduction on your 1986 return.

Marriage deduction
If you are splitting between a 15-year and a 30-year mortgage, there may be a way to combine the benefits of both. Fifteen-year loans offer lower total interest cost as well as lower interest rates. Thirty-year loans offer lower monthly payments.

If you are hesitant to commit to the higher monthly payments of a 15-year loan, it may be best to choose a 30-year. You still have the option on most 30-year loans to prepay. By making higher monthly payments equivalent to a 15-year loan, your loan would mature faster.

However, you still have the alternative of paying lower payments when necessary. The disadvantage you may find in this situation is the slightly higher interest rate usually charged on 30-year mortgage loans as compared to 15-year.

Computer assisted learning available for seventh, eighth grade students

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County School Board approved a project Monday to enable all seventh and eighth grade students to receive computer assisted instruction.

Currently about 725 students in grades 1-6 use the computers for assistance when needed in reading, math and language but the equipment which was purchased with Chapter I federal funds can only be used by elementary students, according to Helen Mestayer, Chapter I project coordinator.

The planned district computer purchases of Chapter I equipment already installed at Hancock North Central Elementary School will enable seventh or eighth grade students to get computer assisted instruction in reading and math, she added.

The district equipment expenditures should be $30,203. However most of this cost will be recouped in the rent for the pro-rated share of the use of the equipment by Chapter I elementary students.

The purchase was unanimously approved by the board, including recently elected members Frank Miller and Barbara Dedeaux.

In the meeting Miller was elected board president and Dedeaux was elected vice president.

The board also voted to amend extra-curricular activities policies in the county to conform with the Mississippi High School Activities Association policy.

This policy allows a student to continue to participate in extra-curricular activity although receiving a failing grade in one subject.

Also during the meeting the board approved final payments of $27,776 to Tilley Construction Company and $488 to Architect Fred Wagner for the six-classroom addition at Gulfview Elementary School.

The additional classrooms were necessary to have enough room at Gulfview to begin implementation of the kindergarten program.

The initial classroom project began in April included a six-room addition but in July the board executed a contract for another two classrooms.

The six-classroom contract cost the district $261,200 and the extra two classrooms were constructed in a separate contract for $95,700.

The original project was completed in August prior to the opening of school and the extra two classrooms were completed in November.

At Monday's meeting the board approved their fifth payment to Tilley Construction Company for the two-classroom addition in the amount of $9,070.

In other business the board: —Approved the employment of Gwen Elmore Necaise as vocational agriculture teacher for the remainder of the school year.

—Accepted a low bid from Monti Electric for $3,081 for Hancock North Central gymnasium lighting and fixtures repairs.

—Approved the resignations of Larry Matulich, transportation supervisor; Joseph Gregory, an elementary teacher at Gulfview School; and Ellen Stewart, a teacher at Hancock North Central High School.

Supervisors eyeing equipment repair, foremen problems

By DENA BISNETTE

Why there have been increases in road equipment repair costs and where foremen should be assigned are two of the latest questions that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors have asked about the unit system.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner told other board members Monday he had checked records on the cost of contracted labor for equipment repair beginning in October 1986, when the county entered the unit system, and ending in January and had found the cost to be $27,600.

He said his figures did not include parts or labor that could be performed by county workers.

Ladner said he felt costs could probably be reduced substantially if the board hired a diesel mechanic and had such repairs done on an in-house basis.

The central county barn on Highway 43 in Kiln is nearly finished and Ladner asked for authorization to advertise so that the mechanic can be available when the barn is ready.

The board members discussed the increased repair costs but delayed action to allow Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca, who had left the meeting early, to participate in any decision on the matter.

Travirca was attending a groundbreaking ceremony in Jackson at the site of a building project he is overseeing for Mississippi Association of Supervisors.

Board President and Beat Two Supervisor A.A. Kellar said he believes that the repair costs will not continue to be so high.

"We had a lot of equipment that was broken down when we went into the unit system," Kellar explained.

County Road Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson, who is in charge of obtaining such repairs but must obtain the board's approval on major expenditures, confirmed Kellar's statement.

Johnson added that many of the needed repairs have already been completed or are in progress.

The board also discussed whether the mechanic should furnish his own hand tools.

Perniciaro said he believes the county should follow the practice of most heavy equipment operators, who do require mechanics to furnish tools.

The discussion on where foremen should be assigned was initiated by Kellar, who said he has become concerned about the condition of roads in Beat Two.

He and Perniciaro both complained that some of the roads in their beats are deteriorating and have not received the maintenance they were getting before the unit system started.

Kellar defended Johnson, saying that he feels Johnson is "doing what he can."

"I've said all along, Bill, one man can't take care of what five of us and our foremen were taking care of," the board president said.

He explained that he saw an example of the problem in his beat recently when a delay in a road patching project in Pearlinton caused further road deterioration and an increased repair cost.

During the time the repair work was being delayed, however, he saw crews in another part of his beat cleaning up paper and other roadside litter.

Kellar said he feels the unit system is not working.

"My phone stays busy all the time and the people are complaining," he said.

"I've tried every way in the world to get this thing to work."

"There's no need for any of us to ask for re-election this year," Kellar added.

He proposed returning the foremen to the five beats and separating the crews as was done when the county was under the beat system.

The foremen would still report to Johnson, he said.

Perniciaro agreed, saying that the unit system calls for money to be pooled but that crews and equipment do not necessarily have to be pooled.

"I don't see how you can be in the unit system and keep the crews separate," Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge said.

"That's not the unit system."

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Jan. 15 at the Hancock County Courthouse.

If your budget, like that of most of us, is a bit on the strained side these post-holiday days, just cook up a combination of ground beef and vegetables - and stretch that food dollar.

One of the tastiest of these combinations is Moussaka, regarded as almost the national dish of Greece. It's a gourmet treat - a mixture of eggplant, ground beef, potatoes and seasonings and such, layered in a casserole and topped with a delicious sauce.

It's a good "fill-em-up" for the family dinner table, and a company dish as well. Here's:

MOUSSAKA

2 or 3 medium eggplants
2 cups olive oil
5 or 6 medium Irish potatoes
4 Tbsp. tomato paste
2 cups chopped onion
2 garlic cloves, minced
6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce to taste

Bechamel Sauce (that's what the French call it; we know it as white sauce or cream sauce. Make your own cream sauce, as I prefer to do, or use canned cream of mushroom or celery soup.)

First, slice the eggplant, leaving the skin on, and cut in half-inch slices. Sprinkle generously with salt, so that it won't be bitter, then let drain for 15 or 20 minutes (as you know, eggplant is watery.)

Rinse off the salt, dry the eggplant, then pan fry a few slices at a time in the hot oil, taking care not to crowd the pan. Remove when a nice brown tone.

Meanwhile, slice the potatoes (peeled) a quarter inch thick and fry the same way, adding more oil if necessary. Sauté the onion and garlic in butter or margarine, and add the ground beef and tomato paste, stirring and cooking for 10 minutes or so, until browned.

Add the seasonings. (If you really want to go more authentic Greek style, add also at this point a teaspoon each of dried mint and chopped parsley, along with a scant half teaspoon of ground cinnamon.)

Continue cooking for several more minutes, until the liquid is reduced, then arrange a layer of eggplant slices in an oiled baking dish, next a layer of potatoes and half the beef mixture. Repeat the layering, cover with the Bechamel or white sauce and bake for a half hour at 375 degrees until the sauce sets. Run the dish under the broiler for a minute or so if it isn't browned enough to suit you. (Six servings.)

As to the sauce: Melt a stick of butter or margarine, stir in three-fourths cup of flour, stir and stir, then add milk to the consistency you want (I prefer a rather thick sauce) along with dashes of pepper, etc., to your taste, blending all together, of course.

Or, open a can of mushroom or celery soup, and mix up a sauce.

Magazine features Coast rail line

MILWAUKEE, Wisc.—The January issue of "Trains," the magazine of railroading, features an article by Jerome G. Lachaussee of Mobile, Ala., and J. Parker Lamb of Austin, Tex., titled "The Railroad that Walks On Water."

The 140-mile New Orleans and Mobile Division of the former Louisville & Nashville (now Seaboard System) can be called "the railroad that walks on water" because of all its bridges and trestles along the Gulf of Mexico.

Lachaussee and Lamb trace the history of the NO&M, and include a map and 23 photos. While plans for the line were laid in the 1850s, construction did not begin until February 1869; the line was completed 20 months later.

Lachaussee is a dispatcher for Seaboard System. Lamb is an engineering professor and has been contributing articles and photos to "Trains" since 1964.

"Trains" is a leading publication for railroad enthusiasts, with a worldwide circulation of 79,416. The January issue is available at newsstands and hobby shops in your area.

Clermont volunteers to apply for grant for dry hydrants

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department is applying for a grant to construct three dry hydrants in its service area.

According to Peter LeStelle, a spokesman for the volunteers, the grant application deadline is Friday.

The fire department expects to find out next month whether the application has received preliminary approval.

LeStelle addressed the Hancock County Board of Supervisors about the grant Monday and asked for assistance in installing the hydrants if the grant is approved.

The funding is being made available through the Mississippi Forestry Commission's Rural Community Fire Protection Program, he explained.

Dry hydrants are devices that allow a pumper truck to use water from most types of waterways in areas without a water pipeline system.

According to LeStelle, the Clermont Harbor dry hydrants will be part of a monitoring program to be eligible for the grant.

Under the terms of the grant eligibility, three dry hydrants in different types of water have been proposed, LeStelle said.

One will be installed in a freshwater pond on a private site. The other two will be installed in a brackish water site and a salt water site.

According to LeStelle, the brackish and salt water hydrant sites may possibly be in county rights-of-way. A fire department representative is expected to appear before the board at a later date to request use of those sites.

In addition, he requested a loan of a county backhoe for digging involved in installation of the hydrants, one end of which must be placed below the mean low tide level of the waterway.

PETER LESTELLE

Under the grant terms, the fire department volunteers will keep records on maintenance, performance and other matters related to the hydrants for one year and will provide them to the commission for use statewide.

LeStelle added that each hydrant costs about $317 and that the design can accommodate the equipment on city fire trucks as well as the smaller equipment on the trucks owned by most volunteer departments.

In other business related to volunteer fire departments, LeStelle quoted two state laws, one which allows county boards of supervisors to assist volunteer fire departments by providing up to $100 per active member and one which allows counties to purchase fire trucks.

LeStelle then presented the board with a roster of the 15 active members of the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department and requested that the board consider providing funds as state law allows.

The board entered the list into its records.

He also reported that representatives of several of the county's volunteer departments had met recently with two state legislators, Representative Walter James Phillips and State Senator Gene Taylor.

The volunteers requested introduction of legislation that will exclude fire department tax revenues and fire district tax revenues from a 10 percent cap currently imposed by law.

The board approved resolutions supporting both proposals.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge, whose district includes the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department's service area, added that one of the items he planned to discuss with legislators at a meeting in Jackson Tuesday was a proposal to allow a larger share of state insurance rebate money to local fire departments.

DRY HYDRANTS—Beat Four Supervisor Sam Peruciaro asks questions about a diagram of a dry fire hydrant Monday. Bay water system extension project to be underway soon

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

An $850,000 project to extend city water and fire protection services to areas of the Bay St. Louis currently not being serviced should be underway by March.

The Bay St. Louis City Council voted Tuesday to begin advertising for contractors for the project in the next couple of weeks.

Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. reported to the council he had received final plans from project engineers Garner Russell and Associates, Inc. but had not received final cost estimates on the project.

Frankiewicz did report an expected $35,000 reduction in administrative costs for the project.

Preliminary cost estimate for the project was $858,000. In addition to providing water to all city residents except in very isolated cases and fire protection throughout the city, the project includes the construction of a new water well and water tower.

Frankiewicz said the contract should be awarded by mid-February and following approval by the Farmers Home Administration construction could begin in March.

Also at the meeting, Frankiewicz reported approximately 300 invitations had been sent to area businessmen for a meeting next week on the city's financial status.

The recent increases in taxes will be discussed.

"I think the city council has been getting a bum rap for the big tax increase," he said.

The need for the increased taxes was created by other agencies and the city is required by law to collect these funds, Frankiewicz added.

"We are not collecting any more money to run the city than was actually collected last year," Councilman James Thrifley stated.

In other business at the meeting the board:

—Approved the appointment of Mrs. Pete Benvenuti to the Hancock County Human Resource Agency. She will complete the term of Peggy Dutton who recently resigned.

—Authorized City Clerk Edward Favre to make arrangements for the council and city officials to attend the Mississippi Municipal Association Mid-Winter Conference Jan. 28-29.

—Passed a resolution declaring intent to borrow $85,000 on short term notes or certificates of indebtedness to be used for construction of climatic control devices at North Bay Elementary School for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

—Accepted a bid from Mike Witte Chevrolet of $7,391 on two 1987 S10 short-wheel base pickups for the utilities department.

OLA BURGLARY

In an unrelated incident two Bay St. Louis juveniles have been taken into custody involving a burglary Jan. 5 at Our Lady Academy.

Murphy said electronic equipment including televisions and video cassette recorders had been taken from the school.

The two juveniles have been turned over to the Hancock County Youth Court authorities.

GERALD GEX

BY DENA BISNETTE
Gerald Gex is resigning from his post as attorney for the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Gex, who has been attorney for the commission since it was formed in 1963, announced his resignation Monday at the Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting.

He had been sharing the Port and Harbor post with attorney Robert Genin.

Gex said he decided to resign after being appointed attorney for the board of supervisors because holding both posts would create a possible conflict of interest.

He has been serving as principal attorney for the board for several months as a member of the Gex, Gex and Phillips law firm.

He accepted the post when one of his law partners, Walter James Phillips, was fired on a split vote of the board, and stated at the time that he did so in order to keep his firm from losing the county's business.

The board decided Monday to appoint Gex rather than the firm to allow the attorney to qualify for state retirement benefits.

Gex said he had contacted the State Ethics Commission after being named the board's principal attorney several months ago and was told that serving both the supervisors and the port and harbor commission would be a possible conflict should he ever be personally appointed as board attorney.

Gex said he was the last person associated with the port and harbor commission who had been there when the commission was formed.

"I regret having to resign because I enjoyed doing it," the attorney said. "It was a pleasure working with attorneys I worked with and the commissioners and directors have always been cooperative."

"They've been extremely patient in putting up with me for so long,"

Bay High students salute deceased soccer player

The family of Bay High Soccer Team's deceased member Shaw Payne Monday night was presented a check from the student body and a plaque from the team.

Mrs. Nancy Hendrix, Payne's mother, upon accepting the memorial tribute, requested that the student body donation be used to set up a special fund in her son's memory.

The fund will be used to purchase an award at the end of each season which is to be presented to the graduating team member who best exemplifies qualities of sportsmanship, dedication to the game of soccer and team spirit.

Mrs. Shirley Barnes was the winner of a free Tiger soccer sweatshirt donated by Tiger Soccer Booster Club.

Other sweatshirt winners include Mrs. Wendy Egan, Miss Betty Waldmann and Mr. Doug Edwards Jr., who was visiting from Texas.

Monday night's team captains were Kevin Edwards and Doug Rhodes.

The Tigers will face Ocean Springs Friday night at Tiger Stadium. Bill Wheeler and Scott Krankey, team captains this week, invite the community to Friday's varsity and junior varsity matches.

Junior varsity plays at 5:30 p.m. and varsity at 7 p.m.

Pinna Hut has donated a large pizza which will be given to a fan who has registered at the gate, and who is present during varsity ballgame.

No admission is charged to the high school soccer games.

Lady Raiders win in New Orleans

The Lady Raiders of Coast Episcopal High School traveled to New Orleans this past weekend to post their third win of the basketball season.

Leah Salsbury led all scorers with 14 points. Balanced scoring was provided by Melissa Catron, 10 points; Margaret Murdock, 6 points; Katherine Smith, 8 points and 10 rebounds; and Sharon Orlin, 2 points.

The Lady Raiders posted a 40 to 27 win over Calvary Baptist. During the second half of the game

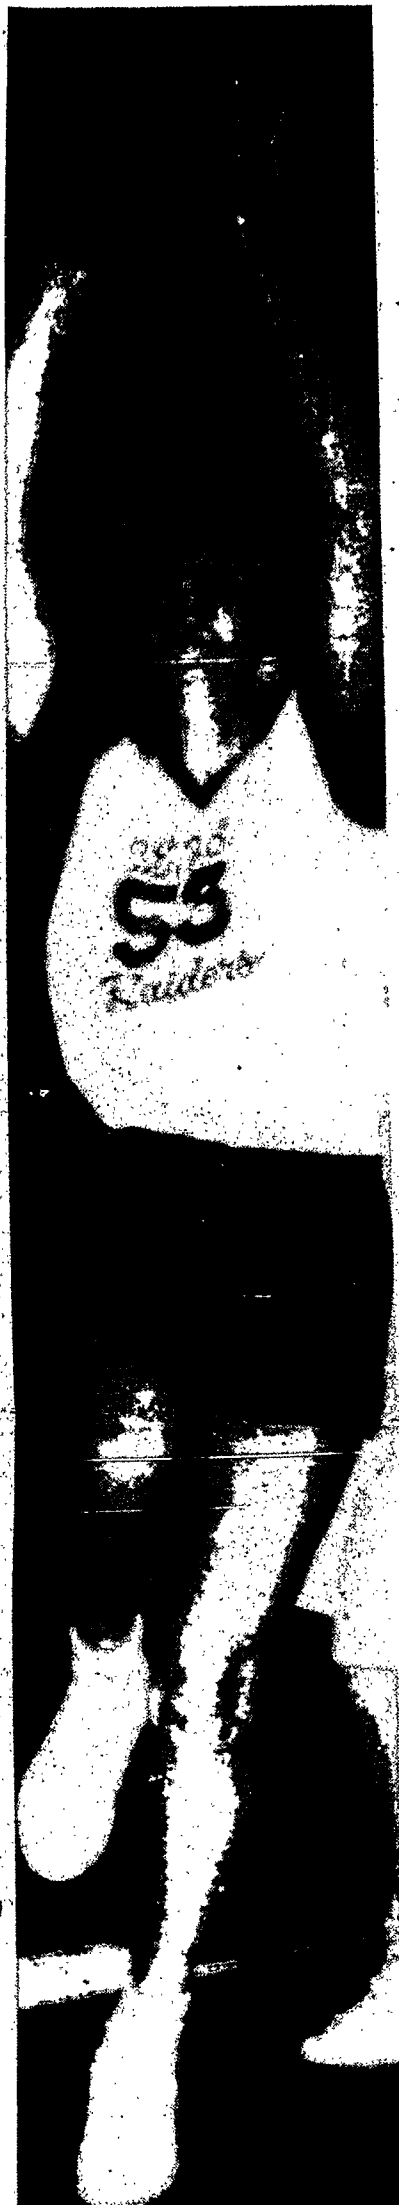

Coach Calvin Smith was able to let his first string rest and give the younger players some valuable playing experience.

On Monday the team traveled to Bible Baptist in Gulfport where they dropped a hard-fought game to the home team, 19 to 18.

High scorer for the Lady Raiders was Katherine Smith with 10 points, 5 blocked shots and 8 rebounds. The Raiders led for the entire game before they fell into foul trouble, thus enabling Bible Baptist to secure the win.

BMR provides study funding for marina

The Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources has awarded $20,000 to the University of Southern Mississippi to conduct a marina project on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Dr. Robert Wales, professor of geography and area development, will serve as director of the 11-month-long project, which begins in December.

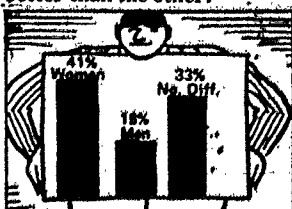

Project plans include determining existing marina services and facilities on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, predicting supply needs and reviewing current regulations on marina development.

Upon completion of the marina research, Wales intends to publish a "Guide to Marina Development."

Winter birds vulnerable

JACKSON—Winter is sometimes a stressful time for many species of songbirds that we see in our yards. Natural foods are less plentiful, winter weather is frequently harsh, and predators are always around.

So, the birds don't need flock from us.

To help our feathered friends, many Mississippians have put up backyard feeders to give these winter residents access to extra sources of food. This can often concentrate birds in our neighborhoods and subdivisions. They can become very vulnerable to little boys with new Christmas BB guns.

Let's be clear about bothering the birds. Wild birds are protected by state and federal laws, Mississippi law says that these birds cannot be pursued, taken, wounded, killed, captured, possessed, or exported at any time, dead or alive (game birds are excepted from this during open seasons).

Little boys are you listening?

The point of all this is simply to say that birds bring a great deal of enjoyment to everyone's life. Protecting them is an obligation we all share. It's a small part to play in making Mississippi outdoors a better place for everyone. Won't you help?

Aggies join LSU Tigers in Senior Bowl lineup

MOBILE, Ala.—Two Texas A&M standouts, tight-end Rod Bernstine and linebacker Johnny Holland, along with LSU linebacker Toby Caston, join the talented lineup for Senior Bowl '87, according to Executive Director Eric Tillman.

Bernstine, 6-3, 238, led the Southwest Conference with an amazing 65 catches his senior year for 710 yards, scoring five touchdowns.

The Bryan, Texas, native, who came to Texas A&M as a freshman and caught 24 passes for 217 yards.

"Rod Bernstine is one of the best tight ends I had seen in years," said Houston Oilers Vice President Mike Holovak. "He has excellent hands, and being a former running back, has the ability to make things happen after the catch."

Bernstine has both exceptional strength and speed, bench pressing 375 pounds and covering the 40 in an impressive 4.56.

A unanimous All-Southwest Conference selection, he also received numerous All-American honors.

Holland, 6-2, 223, led the Aggies in tackles both his junior and senior years. Nicknamed "Mr. Anywhere" because of his ability to always be where the ball is, Holland received

SPORTS FROM THE PRESSBOX

Do you find yourself getting anxious over the lack of important games in college basketball until the middle of February? You're not alone. That could be the biggest problem in the entire sport. Teams play tune-up games earlier in the year before they embark on rigorous conference schedules. At least four teams won't take that path on Saturday afternoon (1/10).

North Carolina at Duke

The Tar Heels travel on U.S. 15-506 to the less than "friendly" confines of the Duke campus to play the Blue Devils. Although Carolina is picked to win, don't count Mike Krzyzewski's team out. Duke can easily play the spoiler role, especially in front of the home crowd. Dean Smith's team shouldn't be overconfident; the players with experience know that anything can happen in the ACC. The guard play will be the key for both teams. The Heels' All-American Kenny Smith will match up against Tommy Amaker. The only starter from last year's NCAA runner-up team. Look forward to seeing a good game, but expect a classic to evolve from it. It usually does when Carolina and Duke show up.

The second thriller takes form as Georgetown plays Pittsburgh. This game could be a rehearsal for the Big East Title. John Thompson's young Hoyas squad will need cohesiveness to challenge a veteran Pitt team. Of course most of that burden lies on senior Reggie Williams. He must score and rebound big for the Hoyas to roll. First-year coach Paul Evans has the personnel to take more than the Big East Title. If the Panthers control the tempo and contain Williams, they won't have many problems getting past them.

It's time to throw out the old and ring in the new. How many times did you hear that one last week? Actually, I am tired of reading those articles that give dubious honors for 1986. Rest assured this column won't haunt you like that.

Instead I have a few wishes for 1987 sports that I'd like to share with you.

My foremost wish for is that we can keep sports off the front page and get it back onto the sports pages of the newspaper. That will happen when the governing bodies of the respective sports react to the realities of their trade.

Football on all levels should take steps to ban artificial turf. It's time to realize that it causes excessive injuries to the athletes.

Professional baseball had such a good year, it will have quite a task trying to produce regular and post-season play that can compare to last year. We would like the games a little earlier, guys. (Just a hint!)

It may be a case of blowing smoke at this point, but I hope basketball can find a way to be more exciting before the play-offs. And finally for hockey. As usual, I wish the NHL will find a way to do more skating and less fighting. There you have it. Let's expect sports in 1987 to surpass our highest hopes.

Goals established by Pass Christian schools

The Pass Christian Schools use an objectives approach to educational management in which goals and objectives are important starting points that give direction and meaning to the management process.

The management process involves the formulation of goals and objectives, winning commitment of personnel to them, providing resources for achievement of the goals and objectives, and managing to obtain the desired results.

Annually the school district develops and adopts district goals which the district should strive to achieve during the school year.

These goals are formulated during the months preceding the finalization of the school district budget.

Each school district administrator and supervisor also develops goals and objectives based upon the district goals and objectives and upon specific areas of responsibility as established in their job descriptions.

Also, teachers and other staff work cooperatively with their building administrators in the development of annual goals and objectives.

The school board, community, staff and students are involved in the establishment of long range goals and objectives that the district should be striving to attain. They are also involved in evaluating the school and district's performance in attainment of the goals and objectives.

After district goals have been established and evaluation of current attainment of the goals completed, the needs of the district are determined. The needs are then translated into school programs or curriculum and the allocation of necessary resources to support the programs or curriculum.

The Pass Christian Schools management system is one in which every person or position is answerable and responsible to another person or position. It establishes personnel responsibilities and an objective means of measuring achievement in specific areas of responsibility.

Last year the school board, community, staff and students were involved in the establishment of long range goals and objectives that the school district should be striving to attain.

In March, 1986, a critical issues questionnaire was used to survey the school community, school board, staff and student body to determine the five most critical issues they felt the schools should address in the next five years.

The critical issues questionnaires were sent home by each child enrolled and copies were given to school board members, staff and selected local community/business leaders.

P.T.A. members and community representatives tabulated the questionnaire responses by identified problem areas and times appeared. School district administrators and supervisors discussed the pros/cons of each identified problem area, voted on which problem areas would be compiled into a list of tentative priority objective statements.

Priority statements which received five or more affirmative votes were listed on a tentative list of objective statements. The school district administrators and supervisors each distributed 100 points over the tentative objective statements. A tentative objective statement could receive as few as no points or a maximum of ten points.

Point values for each tentative objective statement were recorded. A list of objective statements in priority order was prepared based upon the aggregate point total for each priority. The objective statements receiving the highest aggregate totals were determined to be the highest district priority statements and the objective statements receiving the lowest number of points were determined to be the lowest priority. Using this methodology, the following ten goals were determined and adopted for the 1986-87 school year:

1. Continue to improve the district's systems of communication with all publics.
2. Attain a rating of 3 on each standard of the performance based accreditation standards.
3. Find alternative legal ways to deal with disruptive special education students.
4. Increase academic expectations for all students.
5. Develop programs and strategies to decrease the incidence of drugs and disruptive behavior in the schools.
6. Increase cooperation with local groups and businesses that can enhance education with respect to the world of work and work toward the involvement of more citizens and community members in the schools.
7. Computerize administrative and teaching tasks.

8. Develop and implement appropriate performance appraisal systems for all employees.
9. Provide guidance services and programs at the elementary levels.
10. Provide equalized school time for elementary students, grades K-4.

Grant to fund promotion of interest in science fairs

HATTIESBURG—Two University of Southern Mississippi science instructors have been awarded a grant of more than $3,000 to show high school teachers how to improve student interest in state science fairs.

Lawrence J. Bellipanni, assistant professor of science education, and Dr. Fred W. Brown, professor, received $3,000 from the Mississippi Power Foundation Inc. to conduct three regional meetings for science teachers.

About 400 teachers will receive training and materials during the sessions planned Jan. 9 in Hattiesburg for teachers from Region 1 and 6; Jan. 30 at Jackson State University for teachers from Regions 2 and 3; and Jan. 23 at Mississippi State University for teachers from Regions 4 and 5.

"Science fairs are good motivational tools for science education," Bellipanni said, adding, "but surveys of fair participants show the need for more instruction in science fair guidelines, generation of project ideas and other aspects."

During the three meetings, information will be distributed to teachers in the form of a booklet entitled, "Your Guide to Science Fair Projects: From Idea to Exhibit," a publication of NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories and USM; a USM-published guide to the abstracts of last year's state fair finalists and alternates; and a booklet on the adventure of science fair projects printed by Mississippi ETV.

NASA officials will assist the USM instructors during the meetings by presenting literature and resource speakers for the training sessions.

Also on hand will be an ETV representative who will show the teachers four 15-minute segments outlining the development of science fair projects.

The segments will begin airing on Mississippi ETV Jan. 13 each Tuesday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Bellipanni said plans are progressing for the 1987 regional science fairs scheduled for March and April. The regional fairs will lead to the state fair planned for April 11 in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Convention Center.

Winners from the state fair will proceed to the International Science and Engineering Fair next May 10-16 in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Regional science fair dates are as follows: Region 1—March 21 in the Reed Green Coliseum on the USM campus; Region 2—March 27 at the Jackson State University Athletics and Assembly Building; Region 3—March 26 for grades 1-6 and March 27 for grades 7-12 in the Walter Sillers Coliseum on the campus of Delta State University; Region 4—March 28-29 at Northeast Mississippi Junior College; Region 5—March 25 for grades 1-6 and March 27 for grades 7-12 at Mississippi State University's Humphreys Coliseum; and Region 6—April 3 in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum.

All regional fairs will be grouped in five classes, Grades 1 through 3 will make up Class 1; grades 4 through 6 will make up Class 2; grades 7 through 8 will be Class 3; grades 9 and 10 will make up Class 4; and grades 11 and 12 will be Class 5.

Categories for Classes 1 and 2 will include behavioral and social sciences; botany and microbiology; chemistry and biochemistry; math, computers, earth and space; physics and engineering; and zoology, medicine and health.

Categories for Classes 3 through 5 will include behavioral and social sciences; botany; chemistry and biochemistry; earth and space sciences; engineering; mathematics and computers; medicine and health science; microbiology; physics; zoology; and environmental science.

For more information about the science and engineering fairs, contact Bellipanni by writing Southern Station Box 8298, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-8298, or call (601) 266-4740.

RARE FILM—Jon Vickers is the Moor and Mirella Freni is Desdemona in Herbert von Karajan's historic opera film of Verdi's Otello, airing on Great Performances, Friday, Jan. 23, 9-11:30 p.m. on public television. Based on Shakespeare's tragedy, the opera premiered 100 years ago. Sung in Italian, with English subtitles, Otello is a United production, and is presented by WNET/New York.

Alcohol and drug abuse curriculum developed for school use

HATTIESBURG—A drug and alcohol abuse prevention project has been developed at the University of Southern Mississippi for statewide use in public schools.

Project activities include developing, piloting, revising, publishing, and disseminating a new alcohol and drug abuse curriculum for students in grades K-12 in all accredited schools in Mississippi.

The USM Department of Counseling Psychology was awarded more than $100,000 for the project this year by the Governor's Office of Highway Safety of the Mississippi State Department of Education, representing an increase in funding over last year's $96,112.

Dr. John Alcorn, USM counseling psychology professor, served as developmental director for the first year and will begin publishing results following the curriculum revision.

Two school districts, Western Line consolidated schools in Avon and Warren County schools are serving as pilot educational system during the 1986-87 academic year. Following revision, the curriculum will be sent out for use on a statewide basis beginning with the 1987-88 school year.

Dr. Barbara Carter of Jackson, practicing psychologist, and Harriet Fox of Hattiesburg, a USM graduate student in history, presently serve as project coordinators. Working on the project part-time, the coordinators are teaming their efforts for piloting and dissemination of the curriculum in schools.

"The students are participating well and are responsive to the drug and alcohol abuse information," said Fox, who recently visited a ninth grade science class at Burney Junior High School in the Western Line school district.

The materials are designed to provide skills that will facilitate a student's ability to make sound decisions to remain drug free.

"We are working with people's attitudes and values so the only way to go is a developmental approach to drug problems like this. We really emphasize keeping your body healthy for the younger children, who are just beginning to form ideas about drugs," explained Fox.

"For the older children, we have incorporated some concepts from the national 'Just Say No' campaign that Nancy Reagan sponsors. These concepts are used in assertiveness skills activities," added Fox.

Dr. Dennis Webster, director of USM Broadcasting Services, is also participating by producing videotapes to train teachers to properly use the curriculum materials.

The curriculum also will include adapting activities for teaching special students such as the hearing impaired, visually impaired, learning disabled, gifted or mentally retarded.

Drug and alcohol prevention activities and discussions will be implemented in health, science, English, mathematics, social studies and driver education

MEETING OF GIVING—Students at North Bay responded to a call from Rev. Norman Barber of Bay St. Louis to bring canned or boxed goods to school. Fourth grade students in Mrs. Chapman's class who collected
